THE NEW ALDERMEN.
 First—John C. Harlow.
 Second—George H. Smith.
 Third—J. K. Jensen, 2 years.
 Fourth—John J. Sheridan.
 Fifth—Edwin F. Kelly.
 Sixth—E. H. Ransom, 2 years.
 Seventh—L. J. Cronin.

Sweeping changes in the personnel of the common council were made in Tuesday's election, one of the most sensational in the city's history, seven new aldermen elected to take office April 15. Three incumbents just completing two year terms were defeated—E. L. Badger, first ward; Louis Kerstel, second; and W. J. Hill, fourth.

Four aldermen ran unopposed to represent two of the new wards—the third and sixth.

The closest race of all was in the seventh ward where L. J. Cronin, now of H. J. Cunningham but was a resident of the city, was defeated by Harry M. Hand.

Harlow goes into office in the first ward, defeating George H. Smith, his opponent, by a margin of 60 votes. In the fourth ward John J. Sheridan was an easy victory over W. J. Hill and the same was true in the fifth where E. F. Kelly was elected to office by a big majority over Harry M. Hand.

QUICK AND FAST WAS WORK OF GIVING PUBLIC RETURNS

Speed marked the compiling of election returns by the Gazette Tuesday night. There were few errors in the totaling and checking of returns which were immediately flashed before the throng.

Within a few seconds after the results were totaled the polls were tabulated and added to other precinct returns.

The first announcement of the total vote of the city of 3808 at 8:19, just two minutes after the polls were closed and the poll lists checked.

The results of the majority vote in the third ward, a majority for Klein, was announced at 8:20 o'clock showing the speed of the election staff in this precinct.

At 8:20 o'clock there were returns from five precincts showing Klein leading by a majority of 387.

At 8:45 o'clock the returns from the first ward were announced. The result showed a majority of 282 for Mayor Welsh wiping out the early lead. It was on this result that the Gazette predicted the Welsh re-election was made just 42 minutes after the polls were closed.

At 9:20 o'clock the majority of 749 was announced which was later corrected to 699 and later to 709.

The election of City Clerk Sartell was announced long before nine o'clock.

All the aldermanic contests were announced except in the fifth ward before 9:30 o'clock and the fifth ward result given out at 10:30 o'clock.

While a staff of 20 people were kept busy announcing results and flashing returns on the screens, the telephone calls at the Gazette came in at a rate of three a minute over the switchboard for each set of phones from four trunk wires for more than an hour.

BIG BON FIRES AND WAR DANCES FILL THE STREETS

CELEBRATION OF MAYOR'S ELECTION STARTS WHEN GAZETTE FLASHES FIGURES.

RETURNS ARE FAST Immense Crowd Fills Streets and Blocks Traffic of Cars.

"Welsh is re-elected." When this information was flashed over the city shortly before nine o'clock—an hour after the polls were closed, the result of quick compilation of returns—started a cheer from the crowd that massed the street in front of the Gazette building.

The election was over and the majority ruled.

The election returns were not without excitement. The first returns started a majority for Klein. The third ward, coming in first, started the lead for the challenger and the next four precincts heard from were also for Klein. This started cheering for Klein.

Tide Is Turned. With the first five precincts in, Klein had a majority of 187 but the heavy majorities in the Welsh political strongholds turned the tide. The first precinct of the fourth ward, coming in with a majority that swamped the lead of Klein and assured the mayor's re-election.

The result from the first precinct of the fourth ward with 402 for Welsh as compared to 225 for Klein, was the clincher. It was a home run with the bases full in a pinch, politically speaking.

Madam ruled for five minutes when change in the lead was announced. People cheered or were painfully silent, depending on their political views. As the lead increased, the cheering increased and when people were fully confident that the result had finally been determined they surged forward with an excited demonstration for the victor.

Will Demonstrate. There was a solid mass of people along the street watching, cheering, and approving as the returns were tabulated. With the mayor's victory settled, the interest then turned to the ward contests where aldermen had opposition.

It was a genuine old-fashioned political night—full of life, cheering, jubilation and excitement.

To the third ward goes the honor of being first in with returns. The others quickly followed for the election staff showed great speed and accuracy in the compilation of the ballots, a slow and tedious task.

Cheers For Victor. Automobiles and vehicles lined the streets around the Gazette office for two blocks along each intersection. People stepped on each other's toes and wedged in for a closer view of the screen and room to cheer.

When the result became known at the headquarters of the Young Men's business club—backers of Mayor Welsh—there was wild jubilation. The receiver of the message burst out with an audible whoop and forgot to hang up the receiver of the telephone.

When the majority results and aldermanic contests became known, the vast crowd began to shift away. There were cheers for the mayor, City Clerk Edwin J. Sartell and for the successful aldermen.

Start Bon-Fires. Triumphant Welsh supporters not satisfied with red fire and cheering started an immense bon-fire at Main and Milwaukee street corner before nine o'clock. Boxes and crates were piled high and in a few seconds a blaze was shooting 10 feet in the air. Some one turned in the fire alarm with the result the big truck came out of the station with the fire claxon sounding at full tilt. Hundreds stood around the corner crowding into the street until the intense heat drove them further back.

Street car service was at a standstill for more than half an hour for the fire had been started directly on the tracks. Other street cars, started on River street and Franklin, Jackson and Academy.

Automobiles with the supporters of the victors paraded the streets while others cheered until hoarse.

Street Cars Halter. Fires were started at every intersection of Milwaukee street up to Academy and a few on Main street. Street cars were obliged to halt between the street corners. Six false alarms were turned in during the celebration.

There were smoke dances, marching parades and cheering. Congratulations were rampant.

Congratulations together it all formed a typical political night scene.

Mayor Appears. Mayor Welsh put in an appearance.

The old aerial was blown down by the wind four years ago and the government put a restriction on all amateur apparatus during the war. The class is studying electricity and wireless and will use the apparatus for experiments.

Inspection of the ballots shows that there were many facetious attempts to slight both candidates. Ballots were found by the inspectors which had the name of both candidates scratched off.

Jewels Gets Vote. In the seventh ward, Rev. F. F. Lewis and Charles Enslow drew votes for justice of peace. The inspectors and clerks stopped their count for a laugh.

L. J. Cronin was one of the excited spectators at the seventh ward polls. There was plenty of handshaking by Alderman Cronin with even the women who so vigorously opposed him without avail in his political stronghold.

For constable, Harry Whitehead in the first precinct of the second ward received a grand total of three votes. Bert Gage received two votes and four other candidates obtained one vote.

U. S. REASSERTS MANDATE RIGHTS

Washington.—New notes on the subject of mandates have been sent by the American government to the governments of Japan, Great Britain, France and Italy.

The notes are understood to be similar, but the occasion for preparing them is said to be the receipt of Japan's reply to the original American note protesting against Japanese mandate over the former German island in the Pacific north of the equator.

State department officials refused to discuss the documents, but it was learned that they were broad enough in terms to cover all American rights growing out of the World War.

The notes form a part of the series begun by Secretary Colby and in which the United States insisted upon its full rights as one of the belligerents in the war.

State department officials refused to discuss the documents, but it was learned that they were broad enough in terms to cover all American rights growing out of the World War.

Sartell's Big Victory.
Ervin J. Sartell's majority of 3,333 over Perry W. Hall for city clerk was easily the largest margin ever given any candidate for a city office in Janesville. It was better than a 3 to 1 victory for Sartell, a great endorsement of the record he has established since taking office a year ago.

CITY HAS BRIGHT
HOPE FOR HOSPITALFederal Man Coming to Look Over Site—Evansville Legion Backs Move.

In an effort to aid Jamesville get the hospital for ex-servicemen in the Great Lakes district located here, the Evansville post of the American Legion has adopted a resolution to be sent to officials at Washington. It was turned over to L. J. Chamberlain, local O. K. Holman, O. Holman, manager, who returned from Washington Saturday after making an appeal for the hospital.

He stated that Jamesville has as good a chance to get this institution as any other city in the Great Lakes district and a better one than nine-tenths of the cities. Upon arrival at Washington, he stated that he would be met by many people interested in Jamesville as possible, including Senator Lenoir and Congressman Cooper, who appeared with him before the committee.

"The committee on sites has tentatively agreed to come here to inspect our site," he said Monday. "All they need is traveling expenses, congress not having voted them. At any rate
Dr. Frank Billings, representative on the committee for the Great Lakes
district, will surely come here from Chicago to look over the site."

He said the federal government has about 90 acres and have every hope that the people of Jamesville will get behind the Chamberlain in this movement and aid us in putting the hospital here.

"The only city from which we might have any fear is Milwaukee.
Not for any extra good site that they have, but for the fact that they are not having voted them. At any rate
Dr. Frank Billings, representative on the committee for the Great Lakes
district, will surely come here from Chicago to look over the site."

The Evansville legion's resolution states that Jamesville should have the hospital because it is so located geographically as to be particularly suitable; is exceptionally well situated as to railroads and with respect to healthfulness.

U. S. PLANS MOVE
TO PROTECT BIRDSActivities of Government May be Extended to Southern Wisconsin.

Southern Wisconsin will figure in the new plan of the government for the further protection of migratory birds, especially aquatic fowl. The decreasing number of wild fowl which preceded the treaty and act of congress prohibiting spring shooting has been changed to a marked degree.

There are certain indications that the streams of southern Wisconsin will figure in a combination of 20 million and state laws for a second important step in protecting wild fowl in the United States and Canada.

A second step of vital importance is now to be taken in providing feeding and nesting places for the birds during migration both in spring and fall. This would be accomplished by retaining a sufficient number of small lakes, inland and coastal marshes for their safe use. For a long period yet, there will undoubtedly be vast areas in the northern section which will furnish breeding places for migratory birds.

The perpetuation of great numbers of birds is a problem of great importance to the government. It is planning a survey and investigation of establishing these zones and improving feeding conditions in the streams generally frequented by the ducks, geese and brant.

MANY CHANGES IN NATIONAL GUARD

Jamesville does not figure in the reorganization of the Wisconsin National guard as announced by Oran-do Holway, adjutant general, effective at once.

A troop of cavalry, first separate squadron and Co. "I" of the tank corps, the militia unit of this city, are evidently now being assigned in conversions and transferred to be announced later.

Two infantry regiments were announced, the 127th and 128th and the artillery assignments the Wisconsin units were put in the 127th and 128th regiments. The 21st and 9th companies of the 127th were placed in the 128th infantry regiment. The 4th separate company, Delavan, is now to be Co. "L" of the third battalion of the 127th infantry.

Brigadier General Robert B. McCoy is to command the 4th infantry brigade, with Major Frank B. Scholler as brigade executive. Colonel Willbur
M. Lee and Lt. Col. Walter J. Hill, Hart, command the 127th infantry. Colonel Glenn W. Carlock will command the 128th infantry. Colonel George F. O'Connell will command the 1st infantry.

TRAINING CAMP JOTS

The outstanding light of the White Sox team in its game Monday with the Cassers of Shreveport was the manner in which "Red" Faber waded his bat, hitting for a double, single and homer which netted five of the 12 runs earned by the Sox. Shreveport got five runs.

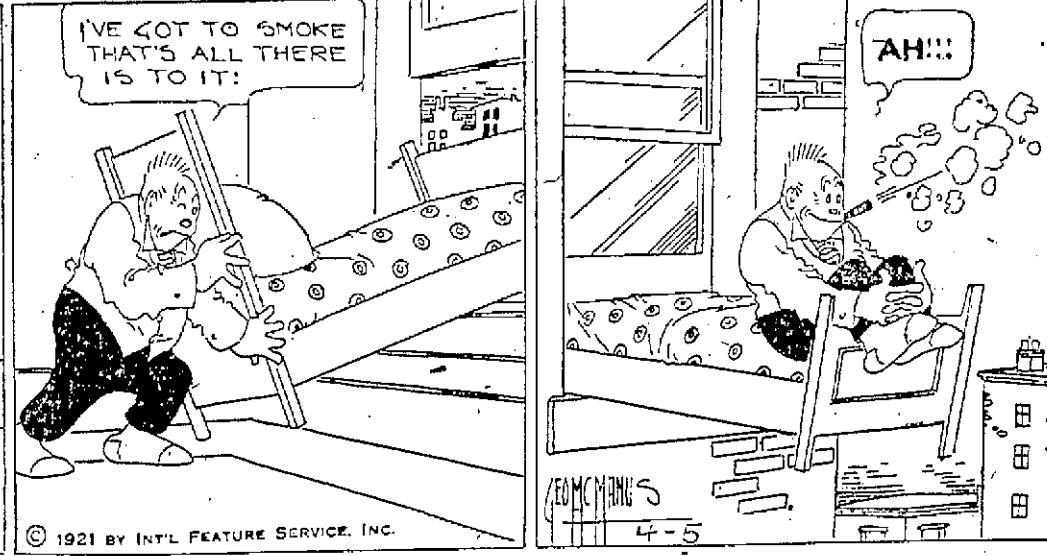

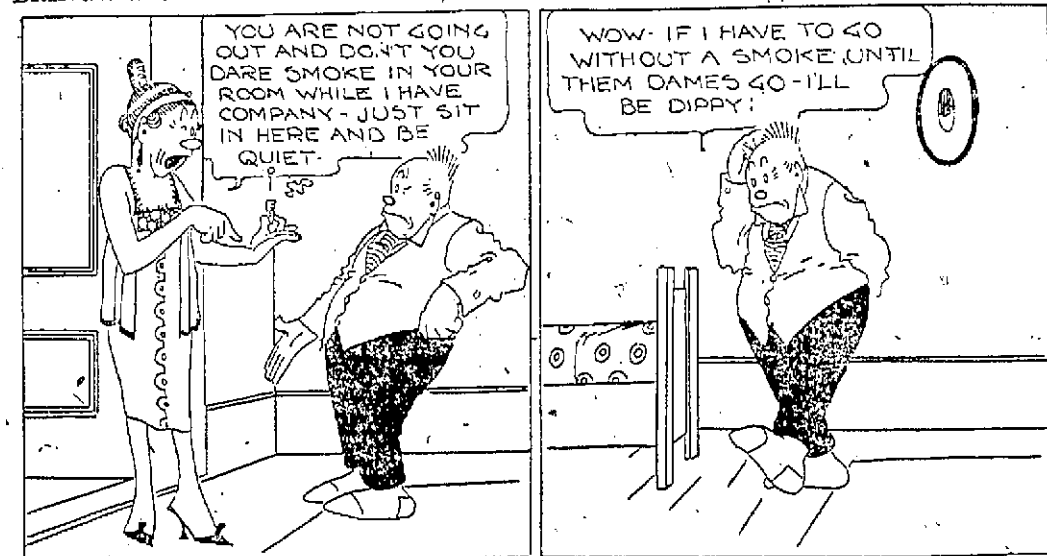

Calling off of the series between the New York Giants and the Washington American league club was imminent Tuesday as a result of the Senators' action in quitting the game.

460 Acre Game Refuge Is Established Near City

Establishment of a wild life refuge on the outskirts of Janesville to be known as "Orestes" was announced Tuesday by George S. Parker, originator of the plan. The preserve has been accepted by the state. There are approximately 460 acres in the refuge. They will eventually be fenced off and the public barred from trespassing or hunting on them. Ernest Barth, caretaker for Mr. Parker's proposed country estate, will be in charge with full authority from the state as a deputy game warden.

Runs to 4 Mile Bridge.
The preserve runs through the stone quarry on the Egerton road and is bounded on the north by the Four Mile Bridge road. It runs from the Egerton road down to the Rock river. The Roosting estate bounds it on the south. The order of the state taking it over will go into effect on May 20, and will remain for five years, at which time it will be subject to renewal.
It will take in 40 acres of the Hemingway farm; 40 of the Sprackling farm; 100 of the Lamb farm; 100 of the Shumaker farm; and 50 acres of county land; besides several others.
In discussing the new refuge, Mr. Parker stated that he was prompted to establish it because of the fact that wild life seems to be thin in the stretch at present. Birds and even squirrels keep away from it, he said. On inquiry from a member of the commission, he declares he was told that animals and birds had been driven off and learned to shun the vicinity because of the long years of activities of hunters and boys.

Hot Finish Will Mark Close of Bowling Season

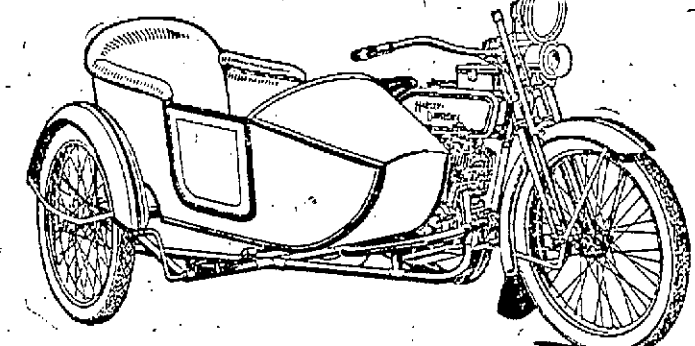

One of the hottest finishes for a city bowling league tournament, promises to be pulled off Wednesday night. The Janesville Tractors will lead first place with 64 games won and 17 lost, is matched to play the West Side No. 1 outfit, second place holders, with 61 games won and 20 lost.
It is the final night of the present season. The West Siders must win all three games to tie.
On the other hand, should the West Siders drop three games while the Bower City, third place holders, with 58 games won and 23 lost, there will arise a tie for third position.
These three teams will end in the first three places. Then comes a race for fourth, fifth and sixth. The Ross Printers are only one game ahead of the Brandenburg Printers and two ahead of the Crescents with 50 wins and 43 defeats. The Ross outfit is booked to appear on the drives against the Bradleys, thus making another most interesting combination. The Crescents will take on the Lawrence Lunch, which would appear to give them an opportunity to go ahead of both the Ross boys and the Brandenburgs.
The Lawrence Knights and the Janesville Machine company will conclude the season in seventh and eighth places respectively.
Sums are High.
When it comes to high scores, the Janesville Tractors are leading the league with 2387 with the West Siders trailing with 2703 in the five men event. In high single games the Tractors so far with 1025, the Tractors standing behind with 1014.
In individual standings, Messick is leading with a high average of 253, followed by Richards with 239. Pire has high single game of 253, made a week ago, Cook holding down 250.
Richards is leading the string of bowlers on season's standings with an average of 186, with Messick second and Lampert third.
All reserved seats for the opening game of the American league season at Cleveland, April 21, and for the first Sunday game, April 24, have been sold. St. Louis will be the champions' opponents on both dates.

A Sweetheart at Thirty

The Story of a Woman's Transformation
BY MARION RUBINCAIM

CHAPTER XXIII. WE SAIL AWAY

Almost before I realized it, the two weeks was over, and my wedding day had arrived.

I should not have stayed up in the country so long—but there was something I wanted to accomplish there, and though I failed, or thought I failed to do it, the fault was not mine, and the failure was not complete.

"You said we should be married in the early spring," I protested once to Francis—his mother had the almost all day, and our suits with each other were few and short.

"Do you know it's almost spring?" he asked.

"But only a little while ago Esther came down for Christmas."

"Yes, and after ten days or so you went up to the country, where, lady of my heart, you stayed an entire month—in spite of your lover's necessities. You came back a little after the middle of February, and it is now the first of March."

I thought about it, then, laughed, and kissed him a sense of time. "I told him, 'And now I must run away from you, for your mother insists that I have no negligence place left to do, and your mother is waiting for me to try one on.'"

And Francis let me go, with a little humorous grin at the mention of his mother's name.

Our boat was to sail at 2 in the afternoon, so the wedding was planned for 11 o'clock. "I don't approve of the hour—it should be noon," Mrs. Meade complained—then there was to be a wedding breakfast, and we were to leave in the car at 1:30 for the pier.

The car will come for you at your apartment at 10, and you're to dress here. Everything is ready."

Mrs. Meade told me the day before. And meekly I agreed—glad, indeed, to agree to anything she planned just now.

The night before Violet and I packed my trunk—a new one Francis sent around, while I discarded practically all my old possessions and put in the lovely new things Francis' mother had chosen for me. I was in a sentimental mood about these old clothes, made from remnants that I had shopped for at the store and smart in spite of the little cost. But I had no such feeling. She calmly made them into a bundle to be given away, and enticed me over the loveliness of the new things.

But never, when she was sad, or when she was happy, did she say a word about Bud! I felt I must know more about it. We were packing—VI was all ready to leave the next day, and only a few things remained to go in my trunk. It was late at night, but both of us were too excited to sleep.

"Bud will be at the wedding tomorrow," I began, trying to open the conversation gradually.

"I answered, her cheeks paling a little."

"Of course, I'll have to see him then. What night, it is that we have quarreled—stuck to him loyally all through the trial, all during the time when so many awful suspicions about him were going about it was Bud who broke our engagement."

"Only because he felt he couldn't offer a name that had a stain on it. Once he cleared off the stain—did you know the trial was held?"

"He was in no hurry to renew the engagement," VI broke in. "It was a week, it was the day you came home from the country, before he had come around a lot in the meantime. By then I began to realize that Bud was too sure of me. He knew I'd say yes as soon as he asked me to marry him again, so he asked me to marry him again. And when he did, I told him I was not sure, and to please not come around until I had made up my mind."

"After that, the trial was very intense. VI was feeling tragedy as only 19 can feel it."

"But aren't you sure? What do you think you do?"

"I don't know. It's a question of how long I can stick it out. Of course there's no one but Bud, there never will be—I'll write and let you know. And with that I went to bed. I was tired—admitted that I had not had a good night's sleep. I was feeling tragedy as only 19 can feel it."

"There was nothing in her manner during the wedding to indicate anything but a friendly interest in Bud—though I could not observe them well, for I was the center of all the bustle and excitement."

"As it was such a quiet affair, only a few very intimate friends were there, and of my own circle, only Helen and Tony and Bud. The bright-eyed little girl was present, and so was Francis' partner. I wore a simple white satin, and changed quickly into my suit when the ceremony and the luncheon were over. Violet, in a frock Mrs. Meade had ordered for her, looked adorable as my sole attendant, and Bud's eyes never left her once."

"And then, at the height of the festivity, while the guests were lunching, Francis and I slipped away—before any one knew we were going. And an hour later, bundled up in my fur coat, I stood at the pier, watching the tug nose her out of the dock—wishing that wistful-eyed little Violet was as happy as I was then."

Wednesday—Looking Backward

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR JOE:

I never heard of "psycho-analysis" before, and if, as you say, it explains why my cooking don't come up to your ultimate standard, why then all I can say is that maybe it also explains why you have such a perfect mania for holding on to money. Maybe you were too liberal at one time in your life, but not since I've known you, heaven knows—I can sign a written guarantee to that—and maybe your suppressed desires to save something are breaking out now in all their fury just when I happen to be around as an innocent victim. So I guess you can see Joe, in "psycho-analysis" like in everything else the source of the goose is the source of the fender. Not that I want to hold myself up as a goose except for purposes of illustration.

My Finnish maid Hilma is blossoming out terribly as a singer. She sings all the time she works and all the time she's not working, the latter being practically all the time. The worst of it is, she sings Finnish words to American tunes, and as you can imagine, that don't give a very patriotic atmosphere to the house, especially seeing that a small branch of the American Legion meets next door at Ricketts every Sunday afternoon and if they happened to hear her I might be suspected of being a Bolshevik in disguise.

So I told Hilma's sister to explain to Hilma that I wished she would take Sunday afternoons off to the future instead of Thursday afternoons, but Hilma refused in a perfect flood of Finnish which may have been downright insulting for all I know, so finally I compromised on letting her off on Thursday and Sunday afternoons both. After all Joe there's nothing like a little diplomacy to get your own way.

Well, ta. Love from self and child.

TESSIE.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Page in care of the "What Shall I Do?" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. What Shall I Do?

Answered by VIRGINIA PAGE

Jealousy Requires Tact
"Dear Miss Page—I have been married five months and live on a farm. I have not brought all my things from town for fear of a fight. My husband says I cannot bring. Some of them are from a friend that was in France. I only think of them as souvenirs. Another thing is a kodak book with pictures of friends in it and of my first husband (who died four years ago) and baby. I would not think of parting with the book. My husband is somewhat jealous. What shall I do?—A Blue Bird."

What a lot of sadness jealous people create in this world! I wish they could be punished like other criminals. Your husband has no right to ask you to part with your keepsakes, and I wouldn't do it if I were you. But just to keep peace in the family—Isn't it horrid that the right one always has to do the being nice for the wrong one, too?—I would rack them up and put them away where he wouldn't be seeing them all the time. But I would tell him once and for all, quietly and curtly, that you think he is very unkind and unjust to take such a stand.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 20 years old and in love with a man 7 years my senior. We had been keeping company for two years. Then suddenly we quarreled because he thinks me guilty of something which I am not.

I am a girl who has always had the best of fellows and the best of times. I have traveled a great deal and at present I hold a very responsible position in a large city.

This love I have for the man is true, as I believe I have the knowledge of a woman of 30 in regard to worldly affairs. I would be thankful if I did not love him. Why is it that a bright, cheerful girl with a lot of friends, which I am taking love so much, is not worthy of my love. He leads a bad life and I am a clean-cut girl and have always been decent. I love life and maybe I could forget him if some other man were to take his place. Am I doing right by waiting for better and greater things in life?

A letter would bring him back. Should I send it?

WORLDWEARY.

To feel that you are so wise is a mistake. One of the fallings of 19 and 20 is to be overwise. At the age of 25 comes a new youthfulness and a yearning for greater things.

Do not wait for a man who is not worthy of you to come back. Time will heal your wound, and in a few months or a year you will realize that fate was kind to keep you free to enjoy better and happier times.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am going with a girl of 20 who belongs to the same religion than I do. We are both deeply in love with each other. Both her people and mine are opposed to our getting married because we are of different religions.

My folks would like to have her join my church and her folks would like to see me join theirs. It is my desire to continue in my faith and so it is with her.

Do you think it unwise for me to marry her just because her folks object on the grounds that mixed marriages often bring discord into families?

SINCERELY,

There are so many causes for discord in families that mixed marriages for perfect conditions we would have few marriages.

The fact that you are not of the same religion need make little difference if each is sufficiently broad-minded to let the other worship as he sees fit. Of course the subject of children should be discussed so that a future of unhappiness need not arise on that score. One or the other will have to make a sacrifice.

It seems to me, however, that a girl of 20 is too young to marry. It is a question whether she is genuinely in love or whether she has a passing fancy. You and the girl will have to decide the problem for yourselves. I can hardly say that religious difference has brought great unhappiness to some couples, while it has not marred the happiness of others.
